* The home, designed by Canberra's foremost architect, Kenneth Oliphant, was ahead of its time. Masterbuilt in the early 1950's, it boasts double brick construction, smooth rendered internal walls, 3m (10 foot) plaster ceilings, spacious rooms with large windows, huge built-in robes - rare in those times, ducted heating and cooling, a generous double garage with a mezzanine storage floor and much more.

* The position of "Killara" is one to be envied - standing across from Goulburn's huge Victoria Park, home to a number of facilities including the public pool, expansive children's playground, cricket oval, bicycle arena, outdoor fitness gym and more, there are many nearby options for adults and children alike. Victoria Park also features a stunning rose garden, looking particularly colourful at this
